

“Is my situation fixable?”

Married outside the Church. Divorced. Something worse. Read this first.

In short. There is no sin the Church cannot forgive for someone who truly repents.¹ Divorced and remarried Catholics still belong and should keep coming to Mass, and many situations have a path; a priest can walk you through yours.²

Key points

- There is no offense the Church cannot forgive for the truly repentant.¹
- An annulment declares a marriage was never valid.³
- Confession is protected by absolute secrecy.⁴

Try this, this week

1. Read Luke 7:36–50.
2. Call the parish office and ask for a private appointment with a priest.
3. Write down what you want to ask so you don't lose your nerve.

“He said to her, ‘Your sins are forgiven.’”

Luke 7:48, World English Bible

Common questions

Remember: Most of the time, there's a path.
